Method: “Create interest about subject”

Author	RSTS teacher Zaiga Kriķe
Aim	To create interest about study course
Duration of activity (min)	40
Necessary materials	Visual cards with different images (50 pieces).
Action description	Teacher arrange visual cards on the desk. At the beginning of lesson the teacher explains the rules and the aim of the activity - to build a more positive outlook on the study course. Learners divide themselves into groups of four. Each group chooses 4 visual cards. When all groups have chosen cards, they start working. They have to find the most interesting details in the cards and discuss them in the group for approximately 5 min. After discussing each student presents one of the answers to the class (it takes approximately 25 min). Every group chooses one answer from all classmates' answers and write it on the sheet of paper. The teacher collects all sheets and pins them on the board. At the end of lesson teacher expresses gratitude for well done work and summarizes answers.
Result	After participating in the game the student has reduced anxiety and feels uplifted and more motivated.
When to use	Teacher is able to use the method at the beginning of the semester or when the teacher notices a lack of interest towards the subject.
Conclusion	It is important to develop learners' interest, desire to explore more the topic of the course. The method is effective because it fosters the exchange of ideas and the awareness about the subject. It helps to find resources acquiring the subject.
